PANAYIOTIS CONSTANTINIDES

University of Glasgow

Panayiotis Constantinides has been teaching English for more than 30 years and has been a licensed dyslexia evaluator since 2012. He is the founder of the online community Dyslexia_Greece, which now counts more than 1,400 teachers. In recent years, he has delivered presentations and teacher training workshops on Dyslexia in English language teaching, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) and Learning Difficulties in Greece, Europe and the UK. Panayiotis chose to pursue postgraduate studies in the UK as he considers it to be a country with a track record of developments in the field of dyslexia and learning disability. He believes that the assistance and support he received during his studies, have helped him expand his knowledge and ultimately assist parents, teachers and students in Greece and Europe. He aims to further develop his skills by joining the Dyslexia and Adults project at the Dyslexia Institute UK, and to train teachers to become more confident in the field of dyslexia and dyslexia-friendly methods. Panayiotis holds a Master of Education in Inclusive Education: Research, Policy and Practice, with a Specialism in Dyslexia, from the University of Glasgow.

VICKY PROTOPAPADAKI

University of Edinburgh

Vicky Protopapadaki is co-founder and Scientific and Administrative Officer of the MA in Animal Welfare, Ethics and Law (MA AWEL), a postgraduate programme offered jointly by the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens and the Hellenic Pasteur Institute. This programme fills a gap in Greek higher education by addressing important aspects of our relationship with animals in an effort to improve the status of animals. Her UK education inspired Vicky and was instrumental in the design of the postgraduate programme as it gave her the opportunity to experience an exemplary educational paradigm in animal welfare, which she tries to implement in her work. She intends to pursue a Doctor of Philosophy in animal welfare with the goal of helping to improve people's attitudes towards animals. Vicky holds a Master of Science in Applied Animal Behaviour and Animal Welfare, from The University of Edinburgh.
